

To irelandscues@email.com

Subject WWF newsletter_december_2023

Dear Ireland,

Amidst the challenges we face, it's essential to focus on the positive progress being made. Here's a roundup of recent developments:

Saving Freshwater Fish: The recent release of the IUCN Red List at COP28 highlighted the plight of 25% of the world's freshwater fish, including the beloved Atlantic Salmon. However, there's hope as WWF calls for urgent action through the EU Nature Restoration Law.

EU Takes a Stand Against Environmental Crime: After six months of negotiations, the EU finalized the revised Environmental Crime Directive, enhancing legal responses and protecting our environment and communities.

Monitoring Forest Health: Recognizing the vital role of forests, the EU proposed a Forest Monitoring Law to safeguard their health and resilience amidst climate and biodiversity challenges.

Charting a Path Through Climate and Biodiversity Challenges: WWF's roadmap offers concrete policy recommendations ahead of the 2024 European elections, aiming to ensure the well-being of EU citizens while addressing climate and biodiversity crises.

Let's celebrate these positive steps forward and continue working together for a sustainable future! Thank you for your support.

Adapted from: wwf.eu

SEND

